TODAY: MOBILE APPS HELP PEOPLE IN TIMES OF NEED

Mobile apps help people find important information—even during emergencies.

Zello turns your mobile phone into a 2-way radio.

The #CajunNavy used Zello to locate and rescue people.

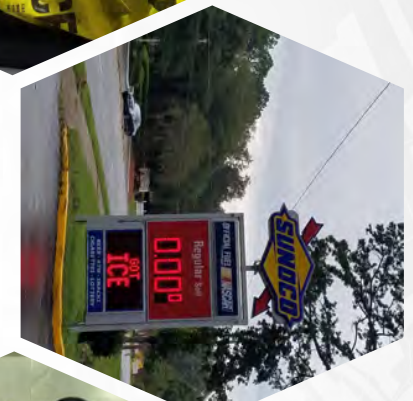

Zello app helping hurricane victims communicate

Bill Moore, Zello founder & CEO, discusses how his walkie-talkie app is used during emergency situations like hurricanes.

WHAT ABOUT FUEL?

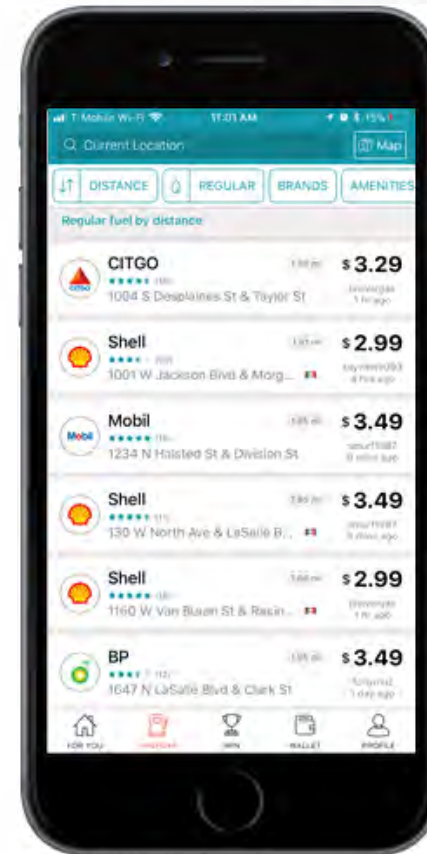

- » Fuel shortages can be severe during hurricanes.
- » Supply issues, increased demand, and other logistical challenges.
- » Drivers typically burn gas looking for gas. Not efficient—or safe.

WE REALIZED THAT WE COULD DO SOMETHING

GasBuddy had the network in place. Already the premier mobile app for convenience and fuel retailing.

What about crowdsourcing fuel availability too?

WOULDN'T IT BE NICE TO FIND GAS USING YOUR PHONE?

THE GASBUDDY (EMERGENCY) GAS TRACKER

Allows GasBuddy users to report if stations have gas, diesel, and power

Both in-app and on tracker.gasbuddy.com

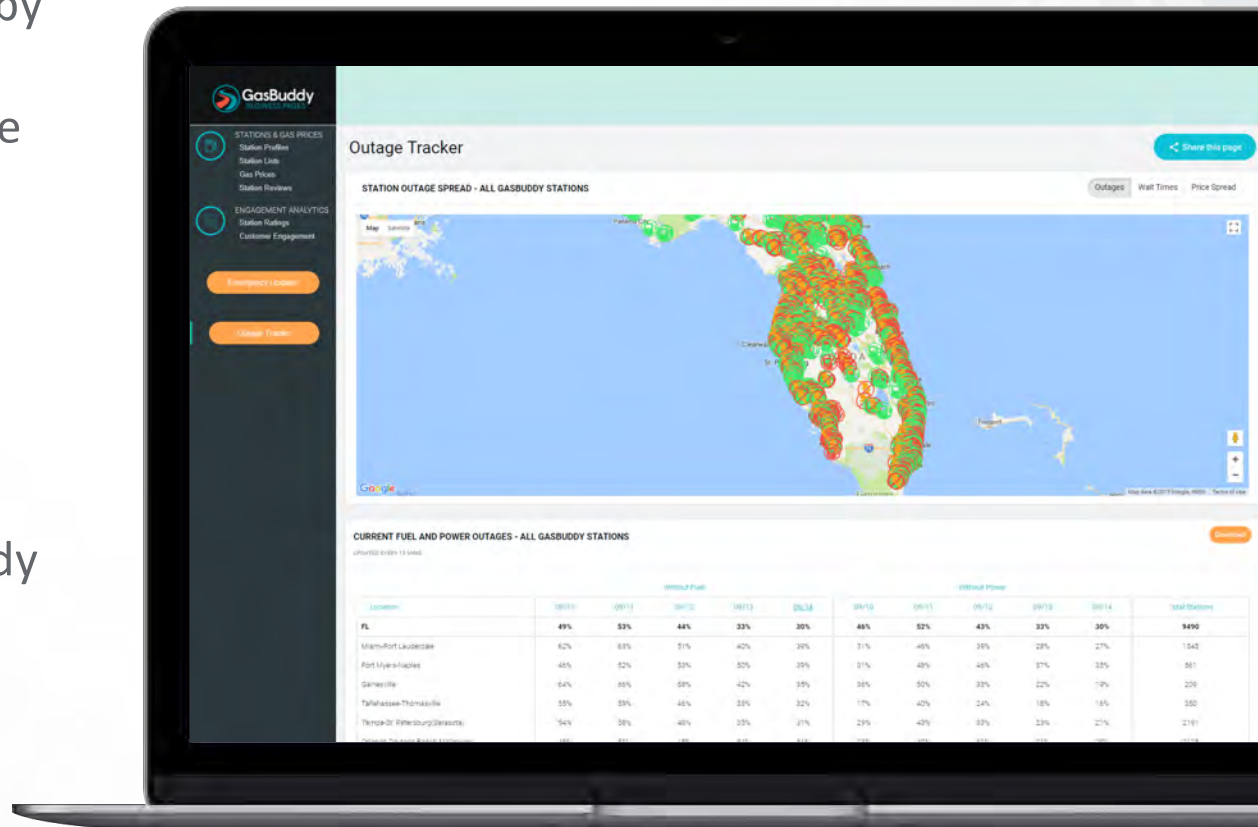

WORKING TOGETHER WITH RETAIL PARTNERS

Data made even more accurate by getting it directly from fuel marketers and convenience store chains

Free during Harvey, Irma and Florence

The Emergency Tracker Solution now includes data from GasBuddy Business Pages Partners

DATA FUELED DECISIONS

Which routes were better or worse for evacuations

Utilities can identify where to fuel, government where to direct additional fuel

Watch data in real-time to evaluate situations as storm changes course

THE TRUSTED SOURCE FOR LIFE-SAVING INFORMATION

“The GasBuddy app is a great resource to find open stations with fuel.”

- Florida Gov. Rick Scott urges residents to use the GasBuddy app to find fuel

As Irma nears, Florida Governor tells residents to use Gas Buddy, Expedia, Google Maps & more

Every family I know on Marco Island has been sent the link to download and use GasBuddy.

They then in turn are sharing it with others as every family, many of them with small children, are on the highway today trying to get North to their safe destinations.

The number #1 worry is not their homes and loss of irreplaceable items such as pictures, but simply “how do I get my family to where I am going on a tank of gas?”
